Agenda

- Intro
- Supply & Demand Overview
- Trying Together (Allegheny, PA)
- Challenges & Successes
- Looking ahead: What's next?

Supply & Demand: What is it? Where does it come from? Why is it needed?

Micro:

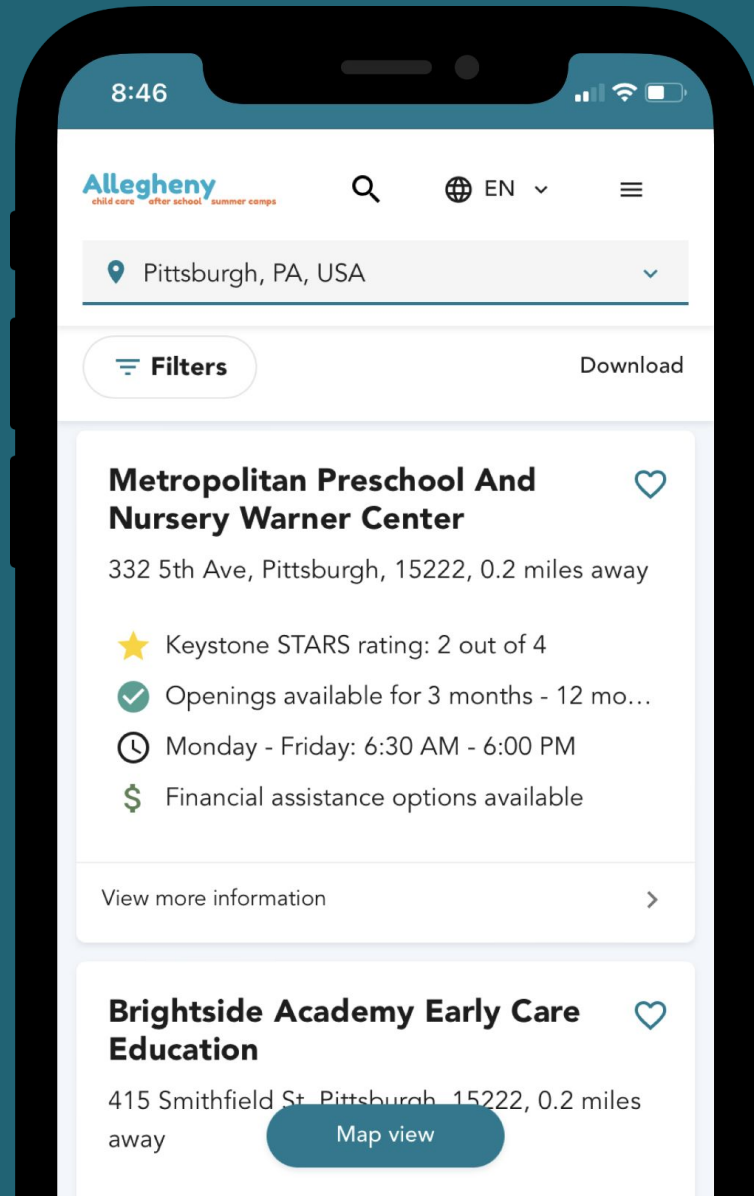

- Show families looking for care available openings now and upcoming openings
- Helping providers meet full enrollment, fill spots faster

Macro:

- Demand planning for future opportunities to build/invest in child care locations
- Funding allocation
- Change over time

Trying Together

Pandemic Emergency Response

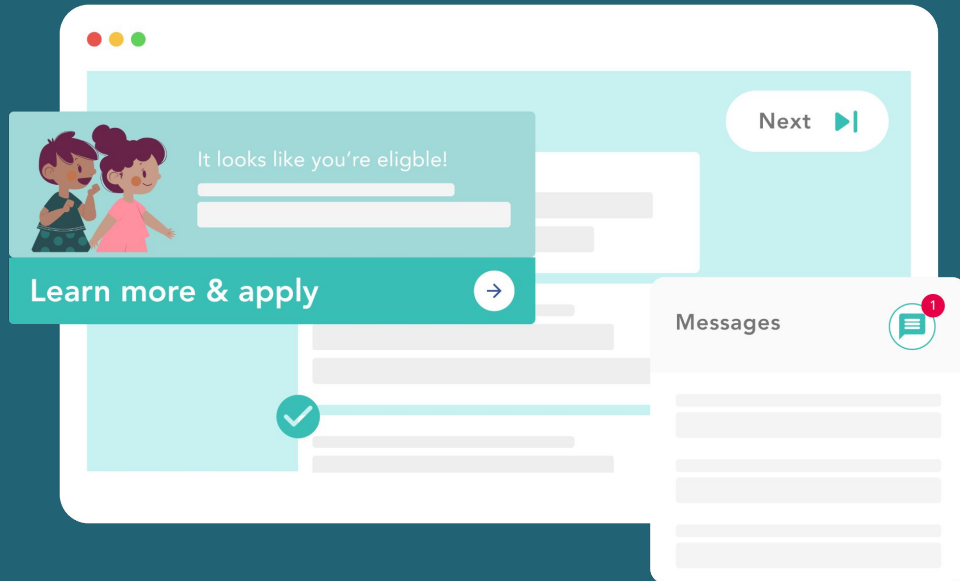

In 2020, Trying Together needed a way to connect families to child care openings, faster.

It was a challenge to understand fundamental information like which providers are open or closed.

Needed fast and responsive system.

Trying Together

Centering the Family

Alleghenychildcare.org has become a place for families to search for child care, preschools, and OST programs and Trying Together staff to provide referrals.

Data is centralized in one place.

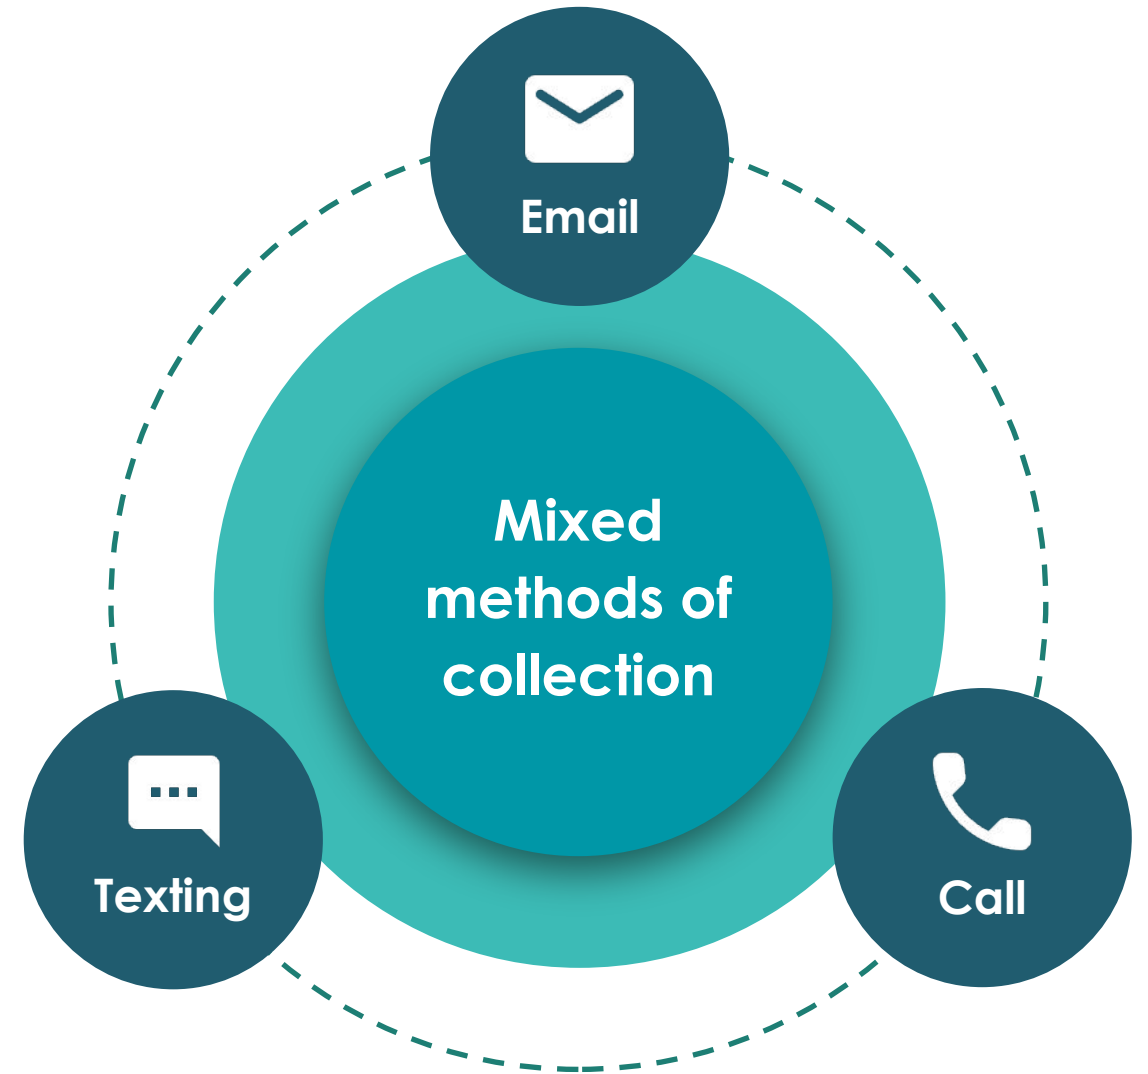

Supply & Demand Challenges

-  Providers aren't on their computer all day
-  Providers report openings differently
-  Lack of incentive for providers
-  Frequency of openings changes
-  Demand difficult to capture comprehensively
-  Dynamic nature of capacity

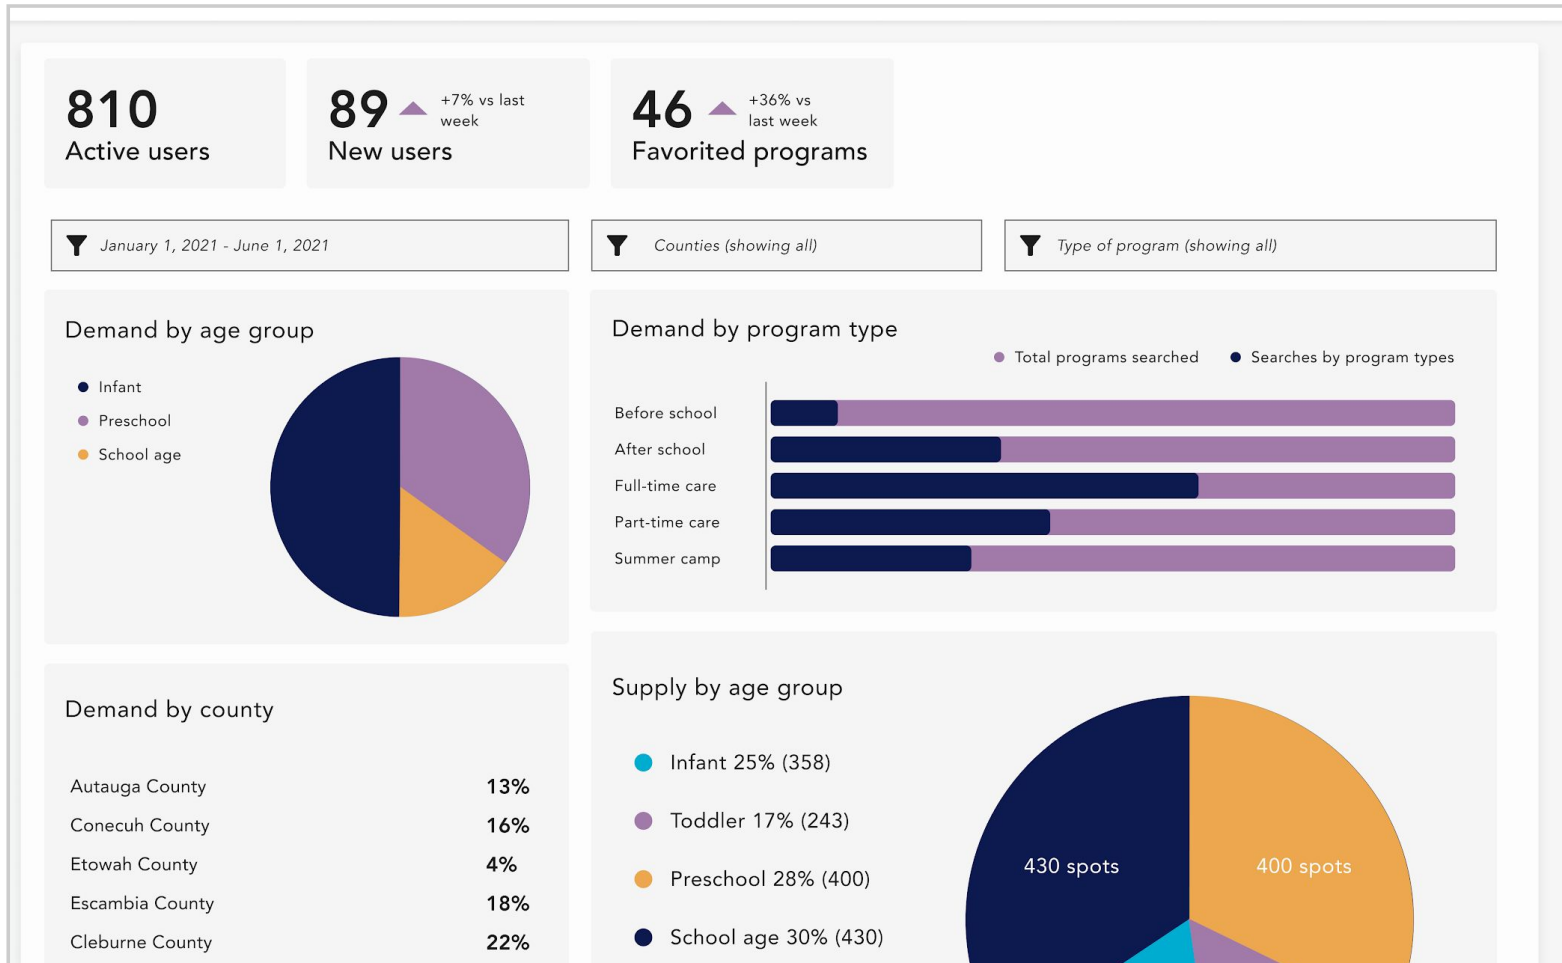

Where it's working well

- Offering different options for collecting information (texting, calling, portal)
- One click actions from emails
- Opting into texting for communication
- Follow-ups from certain CCR&Rs
- Demand: integrating parent searches + specialist searches in reporting + analytics

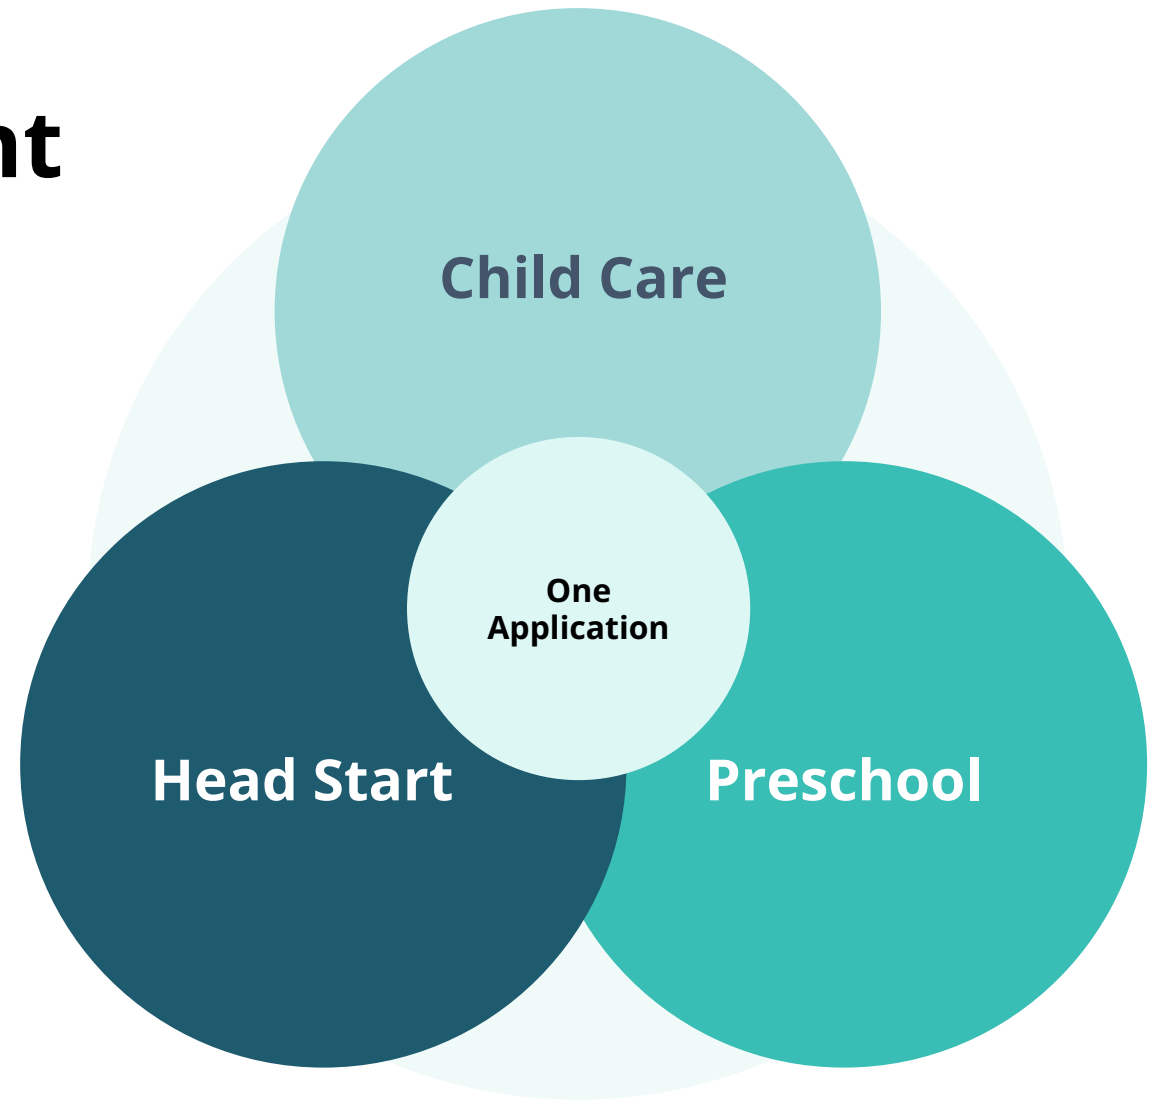

Real-time Reporting & Analytics

Coordinated Enrollment

- One streamlined application
- Multiple funding sources
- Coordination across departments

Fully Integrated Systems

- Consolidated for a more streamlined data and better user experience
- Real-time information for parents + providers
- Data driven decisions for greatest impact
